

Description

A Home for Those Who Don't Follow the Horizon. They Create It. Some people look for houses. Others build spaces that leave a mark. In Los Olivos, Cabopino, facing the Mediterranean, rises a project that needs no introduction. Designed by Carlos Lamas, this residence was conceived for those who understand architecture as an extension of their vision, a statement of intent. A 713 m2 plot, southwest-facing, with direct access to the sea. A point where light, stillness, and energy converge and take form. Every element speaks of precision, balance, and presence. The villa's geometry projects strength, clarity, and freedom.

- Four bedrooms, designed for rest and reflection.
- Four bathrooms, featuring noble materials and timeless elegance.
- An open-plan living area, blending indoor and outdoor living with fluid grace.
- A designer kitchen, minimalist, functional, and refined.
- A versatile lower level, ideal for a gym, studio, cinema, or private retreat.

Here, luxury isn't displayed, it's felt. Every sunrise is a statement. Every sunset, a quiet victory. Surrounded by Cabopino Marina, world-class golf courses, and fine dining, this villa is a subtle declaration for those who don't wait for the future, they build it.
